TWO FORCES MATCHED IN MUNICIPAL POLITICS

Two organized political units will strive for supremacy at the municipal election on April 9th, one including a full ticket of incumbents and the other a ticket which the Good Government League is sponsoring. Only one candidate is running an independent campaign, John Carl, candidate for city clerk.

At the municipal election three town trustees, a clerk and treasurer are to elected, George McNulty, D. R. Stafford and Z. T. Thorning are candidates to succeed themselves. McNulty has served as trustee for twelve years, being re-elected each time with increasing majority. Thorning was elected at the last election for a short term, having been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Carl Mabie. Stafford was appointed to succeed A. E. Monteith when the latter resigned from the board. All three trustees are prominently identified with the business interests of the city and have been for many years

The incumbent candidate for city clerk is W. A. Price, formerly postmaster of this city and clerk for the past twelve years. Price has been a resident of this city for many years and is intimately acquainted with the town and with its government.

The incumbent treasurer is B. E. Myers, who was appointed following the suicide of the late Frank K. Towne. Myers assumed the control of the office at a time when the difficulties which had to be faced seemed almost unsurmountable. By his efforts he brought the finances of the town out of a condition of chaos, and has systematized the work of his office and placed it on a business-like basis. He has also gathered up the loose ends of other departments and assumed a large part of the work of the city hall.

The opposing party, designated the Good Government League, has placed a full ticket in the field. Their three candidates for trustees are M. F. Hughes, Victor Hildebrandt and George Cawthorn. Hughs has been a resident of this city since boyhood and is a member of a pioneer family of Redwood City. He resides on Broadway and is connected with the San Francisco school department.

Hildebrandt is a veteran of the World War and has been actively identified with the local post of the American Legion, having served as post commander. He is engaged in the poultry business on Roosevelt avenue. Cawthorn is a metal designer in San Francisco. He has been a resident of this city for 12 years and makes his home on Vera avenue.

The Good Government League candidate for treasurer is George Paul, who has been treasurer of the Wieland Bros., of San Francisco, for the past 26 years. He has been a resident of this city for 8 years. Their candidate for Clerk is Philip Owen, a certified public accountant, and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

John Carl, the only candidate on an independent ticket is in the field also for city clerk. He has been a resident of this city for 10 years and is well known here, as he has been engaged in the automobile and insurance business for a number of years.

All parties are conducting energetic campaigns and a record vote is forecast for the approaching election.

DEED SECURED FOR BAYSHORE HIGHWAY ROUTE

The final deed of gift for a right of way for the Bayshore highway was secured this week when M. F. O'Day of Los Angeles turned over a deed to Daniel R. Stafford of this city to a right of way through his property here. Except for a small section where the road will cross the land of the Frank Tanning Co., this deed completes the right of way for the road from its present terminus at San Mateo to where it will join the road to Dumbarton bridge at Menalto Park in the southern end of this county.

The deeds for this right of way will be placed with the State Highway Commission early in April, and it is thought probable that the commission will begin work on the roadway soon after, grading a temporary route until such time as the actual highway is built.

The Redwood City Chamber of Commerce has been negotiating for a long time to secure this deed, and after telegraphing and writing many times, D. R. Stafford went to Los Angeles this week and interviewed the owner of the property. He was finally successful in securing a deed to the state of the required right-of-way. The O'Day property comprises the Redwood City Flying field.

All titles to property in the county are traced back to the original grants.

The birthday of the National Exchange organization was observed. Fitting remarks were made by A. J. Stebenne, chairman of the meeting, and a huge birthday cake was cut in honor of the event and four members of the local club whose birthdays occur in March, J. J. Shields, S. L. Jacqueline Bugge and Frank Archibald in a scene from "THE GHOST OF LOLLYPOP BAY."

"Several weeks of continued practice and work by the cast has done much for the operetta, "The Ghost of Lollypop Bay," stated Otis M. Carrington, director." During a rehearsal of one of the ghost scenes, a member of the orchestra became much excited and overturned his instrument and stand. This ought to assure the public of much excitment and enjoyment, he said. Members of the treble and bass clefs of Sequoia Union High School are presenting the operetta tonight. A matinee was shown yesterday afternoon.

Bay Development Seen For Redwood's Future

The future of Redwood City depends upon the development of the harbor facilities and the consequent industrial growth, according to W. L. Miller, former manager of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce stated at the annual dinner of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce held Monday evening at the Episcopal parish house. Miller said that Redwood City was peculiarly situated to take advantage of the harbor development possibilities which the region offers.

Speaking of business conditions Miller emphasized the need of the merchants going out after business, especially by advertising. The country is prosperous, he said, and there is plenty of business for all.

D. R. Stafford render a report concerning the Bayshore Highway, and a resolution was passed urging the inclusion of the Bayshore road in the 1929 schedule of primary roads.

P. E. Brand and Carl Stoner gave an encouraging report concerning their efforts to secure a southerly approach to the Little Coyote Point bridge, now in course of construction. The matter has been taken under consideration by the builders of the bridge.

D. R. Stafford announced that in line with the industrial development which had been discussed, that an announcement would be made within a few days which would be of great importance to this section. E. B. Hinman, president of the chamber of commerce, was the chairman of the meeting.

PRESENT ADMINISTRATION ENDORSED AT MEETING

A meeting of citizens of Redwood City was held at the courthouse on Saturday evening for the purpose of instituting the Present Administration League, whose purpose it is to work for the re-election of the incumbent city officers. The meeting was attended by about a hundred citizens of Redwood City C. G. Lambert was chosen as chairman.

Lambert was empowered to name a committee of twelve citizens who would conduct a campaign for the retention of the incumbents. He named L. A. Heiner, chairman, Thomas Nelson, Emmett Donnelly, C. M. Doxsee, Mrs. Mary Winter, Mrs. D. E. Graham, Mrs. Burton Barteaux, William Miller, A. J. Frohmm, C. G. Lambert and Thomas Vernall.

This committee has met and formulated plans for an active campaign up to the time of the election.

The meeting Saturday night was marked by many speeches in support of the present administration. The concensus of opinion was that 'it's better not to change horses in the middle of a stream."

The candidates endorsed by the meeting were Trustees Geo. McNulty, Z. T. Thorning, D. R. Stafford, Clerk W. A. Price and Treasurer B. E. Myers.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL FAVORS CIVIC BUILDING FOR VETS

The proposed construction of a community building here for the use of various veterans' organizations and other patriotic bodies was discussed at the meeting of the Community Council this week. The matter will be referred to the various organizations of the town for ideas. The building of such buildings as memorials is made possible by the passage of the legislature some years ago of a bill which gives the county board of supervisors the right to levy a three mill tax for this purpose.

THREE-CORNERED SCHOOL ELECTION ON HERE TODAY

Today is the date set for the election of school trustees for the various schools of the county. In most of the districts the election will be a quiet affair, with but one candidate for each office. In others, however, the election has assumed the proportions of a real party issue.

In the Redwood City elementary district but one candidate is in the field for trustee, John W. Poole, who has been a member of the board for 12 years and is at present its president.

The Sequoia High School district has three candidates to fill two places on the board. James D. Hedge who has been a member of the board of trustees for six years and is now its clerk, is a candidate to succeed himself. L. H. Brown of Ravenswood is also in the field to succeed himself. They are opposed by the third candidate, Judge C. A. Shurtleff of Menlo Park.

The most intense campaign is that which is now dividing the San Mateo-Burlingame district into bitter factions. The recently revealed shortage in the finances of the district, which was only saved from bankruptcy by the passage of a special tax, has resulted in a bitter and personal fight.

A committee of citizens which investigated the shortage and was responsible to a large extent for the passage of the special tax, placed two candidates in the field to succeed Frank Thrall (resigned) and Dr. F. Holmes Smith. They were S. D. Merk, veteran publisher of Burlingame and Humphrey Jones. Other candidates in the field are George Helmore of San Bruno, William Mueller of San Bruno and Thomas Breeze. Later, however, when Jones and Breeze announced their joint agreement of either one that was elected resigning if the other was not also elected was made known, the committee was forced to switch their support to Mueller from Jones. Rumors are also persistent that a strenuous write-in-campaign will be made in favor of Frank Reed, Burlingame contractor, and for Richard Budd, a former candidate, who withdrew earlier in the campaign.

The building on Main street, formerly occupied by the Bell Theatre, was sold this week by the office of Henry Witte to A. R. Greco. The building is on Main street, near Stambaugh, and has recently been used as a battery charging station. It was originally built as a theatre and was one of the first moving picture houses in Redwood City. It was for some time operated by E. J. Arkush, who later founded the Sequoia theatre, which superceeded the old show house.

The new owner is the proprietor of a fruit and vegetable market here and plans to arrange the building to fit the needs of a large market, where growers may sell their goods direct to the consumers. He plans to call his enterprise the Main Free Market.

WILLIAM J. MURRAY DIES AFTER ILLNESS

By D. E. O'KEEFE

After six months of pain and suffering, which he bore with Christian fortitude, William J. Murray, a pioneer of Menlo Park, answered the final summons last Monday morning. A few days before his death he had lapsed into a comatose condition from which he did not emerge, passing tranquilly and without pain to the land of happy shadows.

In the death of W. J. Murray there is removed from this community a pioneer, who had been identified with its activities for over a half century and was one of the best known citizens of the peninsula. He came from pioneer stock, his father, John Murray, having come to California, by way of the Isthmus of Panama, in 1852 and settling in Menlo Park shortly afterwards. He sought employment at the Woodside dairy, owned and operated by I. C. Woods. The dairy was located in Menlo Oaks. In those days the Woods home, located near the site of the Shurtleff estate, was considered the show place of this section. In the modest Murray dwelling close by the deceased was born in 1859. As a child W. J. Murray moved with his family to the Dennis Martin ranch, near Portola, a portion of which was purchased by the elder Murray. The property lay close to the old St. Dennis church and in these pleasant surroundings amid beautiful scenes, young Murray grew to manhood, whipping the neighboring streams for trout and traversing the hills for the warry quail and cotton tail.

He received his primary education in the old Searsville school, then located where the Searsville lake now covers the entire district. Graduating from there at an early age, Mr. Murray entered St. Mary's College, then located on Mission road, San Francisco. He was a brilliant student. He became a skillful penman and for years was accounted the best in that art in the county. He graduated from that institution in 1878, having as his classmates, the late E. F. Fitzpatrick, the late Rev. John Sullivan, J. H. O'Keefe, the late John Monohan, John Martin, son of Dennis Martin, and numerous others, then living on the peninsula.

Mr. Murray's first employment was in the assessor's office at Redwood City, where he was a deputy under Assessor P. J. Maloney. Another deputy in the office was H. W. Schaberg. In the next room was located Sheriff Harry Hatch. A close friendship sprung up among the three young men that has lasted down the years and grew in fervor with the passing of time.

Tiring of political life, Mr. Murray sought employment in the freight department of the Southern Pacific Company of San Francisco, where he worked for fifteen years, always commuting to Menlo Park. Some years ago he engaged in the real estate and insurance business in Menlo Park with considerable success, acquiring valuable real property.

Mr. Murray had a fund of historical knowledge gained by long years of observation and keen study of this part of this state. He was an authority on events in this section, extending as far back as 1854. In his reminescent moods he would tell for hours the stirring events of the sixties and the pecularities and oddities of the early pioneers in the mountain district, particularly in the vicinity of Searsville during the lumbering era when Volstead was unknown and when men were men Murray possessed a remarkable retentative memory. He could quote from nearly all the popular authors and could repeat stories he heard years ago.

Mr. Murray never married. He lived a quiet, unassuming pure life, admired and respected by all. His days were passed near where he first saw the light of day. He loved the peninsula and his native hearth., and was always one of its best boosters, and in his death the community suffers a great loss.

The funeral on Wednesday from the Church of the Nativity was largely attended by friends and relatives, many old pioneers coming from afar to be present at the bier of the man they knew in boyhood. On the altar were candlesticks that were in use every Sunday at the old St. Dennis church in the sixties when the deceased was an altar boy there. A requiem high mass was celebrated by Father Kennedy at the conclusion of which the remains were escorted by a large cortege to Holy Cross cemetery, where they were consigned to their last retsing place alongside those of his parents and twin brother, the late J. C. Murray.

The honorary pall bearers D. E. O'Keefe, J. H. Hatch, H. W. Schaberg, G. B. Risso, John W. Morey, F. W. Johnson, J. J. Harcom, James G. Mason, A. McSweeney.

The active pallbearers were D. P. Flynn, Joseph Dickey, Kenneth Martin, A. E. Thomas, C. E. Maloney and George B. Walsh.

The deceased is survived by four nephews, T. L. Murray, James E. Murray, George C. Murray and John Murray and a brother, J. J. Murray and a niece, Mrs. M. J. O'Rourke.

San Carlos Man Believed Suicide

Investigation of circumstances connected with the shooting of Otto Hillefield, well-known resident of San Carlos, in a locker room of the Olympic Club in San Francisco were being conducted this week by San Francisco police. Hillefield was found Tuesday morning by Maurice O'Dowd, janitor of the club, in a room locked from the inside. This fact indicated that Hillefield had committed suicide.

Investigation by the police showed that Hillefield had died from four bullet wounds, three on the left side and one on the right. The pistol from which the shots had been fired was found on the floor about ten feet away.

Hillefield lived with his family in the Devonshire tract at San Carlos. He was a retired German army officer and 50 years of age. He was the manager of the Marshall Field Rubber Co. of San Francisco.

Mrs. Hillefield, wife of the deceased, passed away last October. She was a prominent member of San Carlos society and was president of the San Carlos P.-T. A. at the time of her death. The loss of his wife had been a hard blow to Hillefield, friends stated, and he had been despondent for several months.

He is survived by three daughters, Henrietta, 11; Elizabeth, 12; and Marie Louise, 13, all pupils of the San Carlos school.

Five Points Man Has Narrow Escape From Mystery Shot

Who fired the shot which passed through the hat of Frank R. Lazano of Five Points as he sat at a card game in the Dumbarton pool room? That is a question that local police are trying to answer. It was during a game of cards at the Five Points establishment, which adjoins a grocery store operated by Lazano, that a shot apparently from the street crashed through the front of the pool room and after passing through the hat Lazano was wearing passed out through a side wall.

Lazano told police that he thought that the bullet which so nearly ended his life was meant for someone else. He could give no account of the shooting. Police Officer Douglass interrogated several persons who were in the poolhall at the time of the shooting, and received varying stories. One person reported seeing a car drive up with side curtains drawn, and then drive away after the shot. Others believed that the shooting was from the street.

Lazano came into considerable prominence some months ago when it was found by I. C. Drathman, Redwood City, health inspector, that he was an escape from a leper colony at Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Efforts were made to have him returned at that time, but the Louisiana authorities failed to send for him. It is believed by the state board of health, which was appealed to by school authorities, that he has been cured of this malody, and his children were allowed to return to school.

SUCH IS LIFE --- Confidence Supreme

47 Generations Rest in His Family Tombs

Ada-Bazaar, Turkey.—Rechid Safet Bey, deputy to the national assembly, claims that he has the largest collection of ancestors in the world. In two mausoleums, one at Sivas and one at Ada-Bazaar, he can put his hands on the caskets of his forebears in an unbroken line of 47 generations.

The family of Safet Bey was started in Turkey when one of his forebears migrated into Anatolia from Turkestan 450 years before the Turks, who were to found the Ottoman empire, swept in under the leadership of Orhan. Before they joined with the Ottoman lords, the ancestors of Safet Bey fought against them side by side with the crusaders.

Each generation has produced a writer worthy of mention in histories of Turkish literature.

Rock Deflect Drills

Tulsa, Okla.—Because of deflection of oil-boring tools in underground strata, it is a wise oil man who actually knows where and at what level his well hits production, H. P. Bowen, Tulsa oil engineer, believes.

Bowen says flatly that no drill hole is vertical, and points to the recent instance of two offset wells coming together at a depth of 2,100 feet as proof.

He has worked out a deflection table which shows that a 6,000-foot hole that strays 25 degrees from perpendicular ends up almost half a mile from its surface location, and actually is only 5,433 feet deep.

Flock to Miracle Man

Monterey, Mexico.—From a sleepy, obscure hamlet of less than 200 people, Espinazo, far removed from a railroad, on the border line of the states of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila, has suddenly sprung into national fame. More than 10,000 people are living in tents and camping in the open around the town, all drawn there by the mysterious performances of Nino Fidencio, who is looked upon as a miraculous healer of all ailments of body and mind.

The excitement over his so-called divine power in the treatment of diseases has not only spread to all parts of northeastern Mexico but it has penetrated the Rio Grande border district of Texas. Pilgrims by the thousands arrive daily in all sorts of conveyances and on foot at this strange Mecca where they clamor to gain an audience with the lowly peon Fidencio, that he may relieve them of their physical or mental burdens and sufferings.

Rich and poor seek his aid. It is not unusual for whole families to wend their way to Espinazo in slow-moving ox carts, and swiftly passing them along the rough, worn road are men, women, and children in limousines and other high-priced automobiles, some of them coming from Monterey and other of the larger and more distant cities of the country. So large has the crowd become and with hundreds augmenting it daily that President Plutarco Elias Calles has been appealed to to take cognizance of the situation with a view of remedying perilous health conditions that the thousands of afflicted people who have gathered in Espinazo have brought about.

Gov. Aaron Saenz of Nuevo Leon and Gen. J. A. Almazan, commander of the military zone of that part of Mexico, have gone to the town and conferred with Fidencio with regard to the situation. It is declared that an epidemic of contagious diseases of various kinds is threatened among the pilgrims.

Comparatively little seems to be known about Nino Fidencio. He is thirty years old and first made his appearance in the little ranch village about three months ago. Among the employees of the ranch were several who were afflicted with paralysis, blindness, and other chronic disorders. Fidencio called these sufferers together and informed them that he would cure them of their ailments. At this seance he went through the performance of boiling various kinds of wild herbs in a great cauldron and then, while he chanted in a mysterious way, he threw a pailful of the brew upon the patients, telling them that they were healed. Strange to say, they were apparently cured of their diseases. The news of his apparently miraculous power spread quickly and he became the center of interest of the people for miles around.

The public health department of Mexico has pronounced him a charlatan, but the government authorities hesitate to prohibit him from carrying on his healing practices for fear that to do so would cause an uprising on the part of the thousands who believe in him. To keep order in the town a large force of federal troops is now located there.

Why the Sea Does Not Freeze

The sea does not freeze except in the coldest parts of the earth mainly because of its great depth and constant motion. The earth under the water is warmer than the atmosphere above in winter and the cold does not penetrate to the bottom. This warmer water keeps coming to the top keeping the sea water above freezing temperature.

Wife Shaves Man as Husband Talks Politics

Paris.—Francois Abert, who was senator from the Vienne department and minister of education in a recent cabinet, is preparing his candidacy for the April general elections. His opponent is a Socialist and a barber. M. Albert called on him the other day while the barber was shaving a customer.

"Glad to see you, Monsieur Albert," said he, "of course we have lots of things to talk about."

Then he called to his wife who was in the kitchen:

"Marie, come out here and finish this customer."

Marie dropped her preparations for the evening meal, grabbed the brush and the razor and shaved the customer while her husband and the other candidate talked politics.

Flirts With Death

Amarillo, Texas.—Her husband's dangerous vocation is shared by Mrs. Tex Thornton, wife of the man who puts out fires in the oil fields by tossing nitroglycerin into the flames. But she finds no thrill in it.

It is Mrs. Thornton's job to haul nitroglycerin to her husband. Recently she drove an automobile 800 miles over rough roads, carrying 1,500 quarts of the explosive. Scores of motorists who saw Mrs. Thornton approaching abandoned their automobiles and scurried across the prairie. But she insisted there was "nothing to make a fuss about."

Mrs. Thornton had to change tires five times before she delivered the nitroglycerin to her husband, who was fighting a costly gas fire at Corpus Christi.

"My work is just colorless routine," she remarked after the perilous trip. "Tex has all the fun, and I envy him. His work really is dangerous, and he accomplishes something. My bit is incidental and anybody could do it."

Thornton's "fun" consists of donning an asbestos suit, crawling to the edge of a fire crater and hurling 50 to 100 quarts of nitroglycerin into the flames. If several blasts fail to extinguish the fire, he digs deeper into his bag of tricks and gets water and steam to help him.

Mrs. Thornton also takes care of the storage of the family stock of nitroglycerin. While she does not dread the explosive, she does fear the mice and snakes which she finds in the storehouse.

Since their marriage five years ago Mrs. Thornton has been helping Tex fight the fires. Her hobby is airplanes, and she longs for the day when her husband can buy her one.

THE PUTTING OFF KIND

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

SOLOMON TWINNEY, so the story went, was talking to Jake Bingham about a job. There was plenty to be done and Jake himself was not just crazy to overwork. He meant to do a great many things which never got done. There was a well curb which had needed fixing for a decade or so, the fences were down or leaning in many places, and the corn ought to have been plowed a week ago.

"Well, when could you come?" asked Jake, thinking that Solomon would need a few days possibly to get his effects together.

"Right now," Solomon answered, "There's work to be done here, and done right away. I ain't one of the puttin'-off kind. What I say is, if a thing has got to be done, do it right away—not tomorrow, nor next day, nor next week, nor as soon as you can get around to it."

I have had a good deal to do myself with the putting-off kind—men who had the best intentions in the world, who were going to do this or cease doing that, but who set no particular time for the consummation of their purposes.

I bought a clock of Johnson four or five years ago. It was a good clock, but there was a flaw in the dial when it was delivered. The clock was got in celebration of an anniversary, and in spite of the fact that it was not perfect it seemed best to receive it.

"I'll see that the thing is made good, Mr. Clark," Johnson assured me. "The last thing I should want to sell you is an imperfect article. I'm expecting a new shipment in next week, and I'll sure make it right." I've called Mr. Johnson several times since. He was each time just on the verge of doing something and he thanked me for reminding him. That was five years ago, as I said, and the clock is as it was when I got it. Johnson is evidently one of the putting-off kind.

Smithers is going about on crutches having just gotten out after some weeks of nursing a broken leg. There was a loose board in the walk leading from Smithers' back door to the garage. He had seen it himself often and Mrs. Smithers had called his attention more often than he had himself noticed it. He had meant to fix it. A single nail properly employed would have done the work, but he was one of the putting-off kind and, going out to the garage in the dark, he had tripped and cracked a bone.

There are all sorts of things we can put off if we are that kind—answering letters, paying calls or the monthly bills, joining the church, giving up tobacco, taking out life insurance—anything that does not absolutely have to be done on the moment. But putting off is merely a habit and a very bad habit which, once fallen into, gradually possesses us.

Keep Old Memories

Hazleton, Pa.—The congregation of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, which holds the distinction of being the first Tyrolese organization of its kind to be formed in America and which, with intense national pride, styles itself Tyrolese even though the Trentino now is part of Italy, has just dedicated a handsome chapel at its parish cemetery. Made of marble and perched on the slope that commands the burial grounds, the building makes an impressive appearance when viewed from the Hazleton-Allentown-Philadelphia State highway.

The celebration of All Souls' day at the cemetery also is a possibility now that this consecrated structure has been put into use and this arrangement is considered quite desirable. The building also will be used for services at times that this stormy section of the state makes outdoor conditions intolerable and grave digging sometimes out of the question. Services can be held at the chapel and the burial can be effected later.

Rev. Lewis Lucchi is the pastor of the congregation of Our Lady of Mount Carmel and has a devoted flock. To the student of history, when he meets and knows the Tyrolese, comes a light on the accounts of Hannibal's campaigns, with their story of aid given the Carthagenian in his campaigns against Rome. The auxiliaries came from the hills, where the inveterate enemies of the republic lived.

Among the Tyrolese are found names like Annabale, which is Hannibal with the "H" missing. Amalcare also is to be found, and the name of the favorite general of Hannibal, Hamilcar, is recalled. Alacare is encountered, and Alaric's name thus is found preserved in a people's traditions, after the expiration of many centuries. Naturally, the Tyrolese who kept their national entity in those days of the Roman empire wish to keep it still and they are not disposed to accept the designation of Italian citizens, if unnaturalized, but still call themselves Tyrolese.

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Everyone a Twenthieth-Century Aladdin

EVERYONE knows the story from the Thousand and One Nights that tells of how Aladdin by the rubbing of a magic lamp, could summon a slave to do whatever he wished. But everyone does not appreciate that each of us has an even more powerful slave which we can call by merely pressing a button, or throwing a switch—electricity.

We live in a world of mechanical giants, superior to the gods of the old myths. Electricity, gas, radio, the telephone, numerous labor-saving devices—all these make the deeds of Zeus and Thor pale into insignificance. Our slaves are numberless and they have none of the human frailties. The great Pharaohs had fleet runners to carry their messages—today, John Smith has a means of communication that excels the energy and efficiency of a million such runners. The parallel could be carried much further.

Let no one envy the monarchs of antiquity. The wonders of the twentieth century may seem prosaic, but nothing in the past, either fact or fiction can match them.

NICARAGUA

THE refusal of the Nicaraguan Chamber of Deputies to pass the McCoy electoral bill, providing for American supervision and insuring fairness in the approaching presidential election in that country, is evidence of the fact that the Conservatives under the leadership of Diaz were not so sincere in their expressed desire to Col. Stimson for a fair supervised election. Obviously, it is clear to them that the majority of their fellow countrymen are not in favor of the administration continuing to remain in their hands, as this bill was defeated by their efforts. Fifteen of the seventeen who voted for its passage are members of the Liberal Party.

Before the intervention by U. S. Marines the forces of the Liberals were gradually defeating the forces supporting Diaz and the former were approaching the capital city, Managua. Seeing that theye were in imminent danger of defeat and overthrow the Conservatives gladly welcomed the Marines of this country, and when it was proposed by Col. Stimson that both parties lay aside their arms and await the outcome of the next election they agreed along with the Liberals. Now those in power express their gratitude to the United States by refusing to pass a law which makes a fair election possible.

This refusal does not back the statements and contentions concerning the integrity and honesty of Diaz and his regime made by those responsible for the seemingly uncalled for intervention by the United States in the affairs of that small country. To state it in a popular phrase "it leaves them without a leg to stand upon."

Conditions in Nicaragua remain about the same and apparently the lives of a goodly number of American Marines have been uselessly sacrificed. Yet the position of the United States is similar to that of one who has crossed a river and burned the bridge. Our word has been given that recognition shall be given to the victorious party of the next election and that that election shall be fairly conducted. Yet, since the Chamber of Deputies has refused to pass laws providing for United tSates supervision of the election in October, it is wondered how the promise is to be fulfilled. It has been predicted that President Diaz will be called upon to issue an order to take the place of the bill that failed to pass. This prediction causes two questions. Will Diaz give such an order, and even if he should, would it be legal?

It has been stated officially that President Coolidge does not know that ratification of American supervision by the Nicaraguan Congress was absolutely necessary. On the other hand, without ratification it becomes necessary to force upon an administration that has been recognized by the United States something that is entirely adverse to their sentiments.

All in all the situation presents a dilemma that is hard to solve, one in which most any solution leads to further difficulties. In the meantime the forces of American Marines in that country are suffering almost daily casualties.

EDITORS ANNUAL OUTING

California Press Association Goes to Crater Lake in June

Crater Lake, Klammath Falls and the Rogue River Valley will be the objective point of the California Press Association this year. The party will be composed of one hundred editors and their wives, and a fine program has been outlined.

The party will leave San Francisco on a special Pullman train. At Klamath Falls a day will be spent in sightseeing and then on to Crater Lake. Five days will be spent there, where the annual convention and election of officers will be held. An interesting program is being arranged and a number of social events planned besides such sports as fishing, mountain climbing, boating, skiing and hunting.

The arrangements are being made by the president, Friend W. Richardson and Secretary Oran A. King.

The excursion promises to be one of the best of many outings held by the editors of the state organization.

DREAMS AND FACTS

Veterans Choose City Homes

Return Soldiers Prefer Urban Life; Many Receive Loans

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, March 28 — The return soldier "chooses not to run" a farm it seems from the report made public today by George H. Stout, secretary of the Veterans Welfare Board, on the purchase by the state of over $20,500,000 in homes and farms for veterans under California's farm and home loan plan.

Stout discloses that while 4138 former soldiers and sailors accepted aid in the securing of a home, only 236 ex-service men could be induced to "go back to the farm" although the amount the state advanced for farming purposes was far highher than that allowed for buying of a home. The cost of homes did not average more than $4673 apiece, while approximately $5400 was spent in the purchase of each farm.

San Benito county ranks foremost as a county whose veterans stand 100 per cent for agriculture. Two of her veterans purchased farms averaging $7,500, the top price paid by the state in the interest of veterans.

Glenn and Colusa county soldiers also are noteworthy for "preferring" rural to urban life, while the veterans in Stanislaus and Merced counties showed a distinct perchant for agriculture fully one-third of their home seekers taking a farm in preference to a town house and lot.

The total expenditure for homes totaled $19,339,963 at the same time the amount spent for farms reached only $1,274,436.

The people have voted bonds to the amount of $30,000,0000 for loans to the veterans, the purchasers paying a low rate of interest and repaying the principal in small monthly installments extending over a period of twenty years.

Approximately two-thirds of the total bond issue has been expended already and applications are on file for the ten million remaining, the applicants merely waiting for an investigation of the financial feasibility of the projected purchases.

The veterans in some of the interior counties have been dilatory in utilizing the state credit offered to them in this loan scheme, among these are Tuolumne and Lassen county service men. There is still time for the former soldiers and sailors in these localities to reap for themselves and their communities the advantages offered under the Loan Act.

Alameda county ranks second in the state in the number of homes purchased within its boundaries, a total of 713 Alameda veterans bought homes and farms valued at $3,3 9,065. Of this number 711 were homes and only two farms. Two hundred twenty-six of the soldiers and sailors awarded home purchase contracts were wounded or disabled men.

In San Mateo county 83 homes have been purchased, valued at $398,150, 18 purchases were made by disabled veterans, and all purchases were of city property.

COUNTY SCHOOL HEAD ON LEGISLATION GROUP

Miss Pansy Jewett Abbot, superintendent of schools of this county, is one of the five superintendents of schools of the state forming a committee to foster the passage of amendment 26, which will come up before the state legislature. The amendment provides for the complete reorganization of the state school system, including the making of the county superintendent's office an appointive one instead of elective as at present.

Better Health—Longer Life

GORGAS MEMORIAL INSTITUTE

THE HEART OF MIDDLE LIFE

By William S. Sadler, M. D.
Chicago, Ill.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Heart disease is responsible for twice as many deaths as any other disease. In 1926 the death rate from heart disorders increased from 186 to 199 per 100,000 population in the United States. Practically one person out of every 500 dies of some form of heart disease. No other cause of death is mounting with comparable rapidity. Since very few persons under forty years of age die with heart disease, and since both the heavy death rates and the larger populations are in the younger years, the heavy heart disease rate means that t he chance is very great that any man over forty will pass away from this disease.

Important among the causes of heart trouble are the after-effects of infectious diseases. Most of the ground-work for heart disease is laid down in childhood, and in our efforts at prevention we must concentrate on the children of school age and guard against the more common infectious diseases.

When young adults are systematically examined, as is now done on entrance to college, it is found that a large proportion have heart murmurs. These subjects deny that they have ever had heart trouble or that they have any symptoms of it at the time of the examination. When closely questioned they tell of having had rheumatism, St. Vitus' Dance, or some eruptive disease, but they thought recovery had been complete.

Any of the following symptoms should call for a medical examination, but it does not necessarily follow that you have heart disease because you have these symptoms:

Shortness of breat—inability to get one's second wind as rapidly as the average person.

Swelling of the ankles—particularly if the ankle "pits" on pressure. This swelling is more prone to apper in the evening.

Rapid, palpitating, or thumping heart. These symtoms may or may not be an evidence of heart trouble—they may arise from nervousness or indigestion, but they should be investigated.

Pain in the region of the heart—especially if it is severe and "vice-like." In persons over fifty years of age this may indicate the coming on of angina pectoris.

The periodic medical examination is an essential in the campaign to lessen the death rate from heart disease. The early detection of the conditions causing heart trouble would prevent the later appearance of the disorder. A carefully planned regime for those already afflicted will add to their efficiency and prolong life—in fact, with reasonable care people with heart disease can live just about as long as those with sound hearts. Then, too, there are many people who are miserale, unhappy, and inefficient through fear of heart trouble, when an examination would disclose the fact that the heart is sound.

ICE GUARDS FOOD FLAVORS

Did you ever stop to think that the expensive thing about food is not its calories, but its flavor? That is what you pay for in a select cut of meat, in fresh, prime fruit and vegetables, in the best grade of butter or in certified milk, and eggs fresh from the farm.

The milkman and grocer go to great pains and expense to guard good flavor by the plentiful use of ice. They must do so in order to deliver their goods to you in prime condition.

After you pay for food of good quality surely it would be wasteful to let the flavor be lost by careless handling in the home. As soon as you receive perishable foods from the delivery man put them immediately in a well-chilled refrigerator and keep them there right up to the minute you are ready to cook or serve them. If you do that your food will mean more than so many calories. It will have also the delicacy of flavor which tempts the appetite and is the real enjoyment of a good meal, for keeping food sufficiently chilled not only prevents spoling; it also protects flavor.

The best cook in the world cannot prepare a delicious meal with raw ingredients which have started to lose flavor. Flavor is like perfume; it melts into thin air unless preserved.

It is most important to keep the ice chamer of your refrigerator well filled with ice all the time. That not only saves food; its saves ice, which then melts much more slowly.

Ice is more than a refrigerant. Nearly all exposed food gathers impurities from handling and from the air. When such food is stored away in a refrigerator it is surrounded by circulating air, due to the cold air sinking and the warmer air rising. These air currents carry the surface impurities back to the ice, which absorbs them, as all moisture does. Then they seep down the drain pipe and disappear. That purifies your food. It is another big advantage of using ice.

MANY REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD TRY CHIROPRACTIC

When one certain measure fails to bring desired results, every thinking person naturally turns to something else. This holds true in everything in life.

If your pen fails to write, you select another. If your merchant hasn't in stock what you want, you go to one who has. If your home is too small, you seek larger quarters. If one remedy fails to give relief in sickness you try another.

The failure of one thing to bring satisfying results constitutes a real reason for the trial of another.

In the past few years there have been thousands of cases cured by CHIROPRACTIC, where medicine has been given a timely trial and proved an absolute failure—therefore there are thousands of reasons why you should try CHIROPRACTIC.

These reasons are not theoretical—they are practical. They are not abstract principals — they are concrete facts They are not advanced by CHIROPRACTORS, they are given by medical doctors.

In studying many medical books written by the best medical authorities, you will find opposite the names of hundreds of diseases one or more quotations to the eflect that little or nothing can be done for them by médicine.

Are you suffering from any of these? Then try CHIROPRACTIC, for medicine is confessedly a failure in all of them. And the reason is not far to seek. In every one of these diseases relief can come only upon removal of the cause of the disorder.

This is exactly why CHIROPRACTIC succeeds—because it removes the cause, which is deficient nerve supply of the affected parts.

Hi. School Note

Faculty as well as students are looking forward to the annual Easter Vacation beginning Monday and continuing to April 9.

"Health Week" started Monday at Sequoia and continued until today with nails, skin and hair, teeth and diet, shoes, and posture being the different points in relation to the care of the body which were stressed on certain days. Properly balanced menu, prepared and served by the cafeteria, were also one of the features of health week. Miss Ann W. Neff, social problems instructor, was general chairman of arrangements.

A survey to find the scholastic ratings of all the boy athletes in Sequoia as compared with the standings of non-athletes, is being carried on by Allain Lutje.

Decorations featuring a country club atmosphere with awnings and porch effects are being planned by Sigma Delta Cappa Girls Dramatic Society for their sport dance, Saturday, April 14. Vera Clement, president, is being assisted with the arrangements by Miss Felecia Mikle.

There remain but a few students who have not registered for the school term of 1928-29, according to Miss Juliane Wolters, registrar. This early registration was begun so that students could consult parents and decide definitely before the end of this school year.

The girls' jinx which will not be held until the latter part of April due to the illness of Miss Catherine J. Boyle, dean of girls, will be a costume dance.

No More Stunts For State's Bear

By Capitol News Bureau

SACRAMENTO, March 29 — The bear on California's Great Seal has fleas according to State Printer Carroll H. Smith, who today was commissioned by Governor C. C. Young to end the restlessness of the big fellow, originally designed as crouching at Minerva's feet and eating grapes, but according to half a dozen spurious versions appearing on state printing is snoring, walking or sitting on his haunches.

Smith will restore the bear to his original posture drinking grape juice. The number of stars encircling the seal has been set at 31, representative of the states in the union when California joined, although from 32 to 40 have been used in various imprints. And the picture of Medusa which originally adorned Minerva's shield will replace the bob-cat interpolated by some artists after the original design was adopted by the constitutional congress in 1849.

Reapportionment Drama To Be Shifted To Supreme Court

By Capitol News Bureau

SACRAMENTO, March 29 — The next act of the reapportionment drama whereby the "cow county" bloc hopes to gain control of the state senate will be staged in the State Supreme Court on next Tuesday, when Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan will be hailed into court by Senator Frank S. Boggs on a writ of mandate to show whether the referendum petitions against the Farm Bureau reapportionment measure were in proper form or not.

Senator Boggs is assisted by Senator J. M. Inman of Sacramento, who is also an attorney as well as one of the sponsors of the fight to defeat the referendum. Boggs is demanding that Jordan call the August Primary election under his 1927 reapportionment law redistricting the state and disregard the referendum petitions filed against it because of alleged irregularities in their circulation and certification.

$100,000 Home for T. Hopkins

Plans for Timothy Hopkins to own one of the finest homes of the city were partly disclosed this week when abstracts revealed that he had made application to build a residence to cost approximately $100,000. The home, which is to be a three-story class A. structure, will be at the northeast corner of Washington and Spruce streets, San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins are at present travelling in Europe and will not return for some time. The rumor some time ago that the estate here of 280 acres had been sold has no foundation in fact. It is pretty well established that the property will not be sold during the life time of Mrs. Hopkins, who is greatly attached to the old home which holds so many fond memories for her.

Menlo Presbyterian Church

At the morning service next Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Bone, will speak upon "The Triumphal Entry." The quarterly communion will be observed and members received. At the evening service the sermon subject will be "Samson."

Resolutions of Respect Passed

At a meting of the Merchants' Association held in the Kuck hall last Monday night appropriate resolutions in respect to the memory of the late W. J. Murray were adopted and ordered spread upon the minutes and copies sent to the relatives of the deceased. Don Cupid Busy

Lent will be over very soon and right after Easter several marriages of local people are reported to take place. You will be surprised to know who they are.

Injured in Runaway

Fred Worrell of Stanford Park, who was injured in a runaway accident last Friday afternoon. It is reported that he is recovering and will suffer no serious results. His team started down the main street at full speed drawing a gravel wagon. At the Peralta Pigeon Farm the wagon collided with the curbing. Worrell was precipitated to the ground and dragged for three hundred yards, and suffered some deep gashes on the side of his head. No bones were broken.

Will Plant A Tree Sunday

The members of Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. will plant a tree in the Freemont school in Stanford Park Sunday afternoon. The members will assemble at Masonic hall at 1:30 o'clock and march in a body out to the institution where the planting will take place with due ceremony. Mayor Blake will deliver an address.

Annual Communion Sunday

The annual communion of the members of St. Joseph Alumni will take place at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday morning. A full attendance is urged. The breakfast will be served at Cafe de Paris. Father Duffey will preside at the festive board. The Alumni announce a card party in the Masonic hall on April 11. This is the first card party after Lent and should be well attended.

No Need for Mudslinging

It is to be regretted that harsh personalities and mud slinging have been injected into the city election to take place on April 9. There is no need of this. The campaign should be conducted along decent lines without indulging in abuse and scullduggery and resorting to the tactics used by the ward politician. It is to be hoped further abuse of candidates will cease from this on the campaign will be conducted along clean lines.

TO FACE SENTENCE ON STOCK DISPOSAL

Sentence will be meted out to L. W. Reed tomorrow on a charge of disposing of stock without securing a broker's license. Reed was found guilty on this charge and also of posing as a broker when he had no broker's license.

Reed's arrest in Los Angeles recently was upon complaint of Dr. Ella Meyer, a chiropractor of Burlingame, who declared that Reed had disposed of shares in the Yosemite Portland Cement Co. for which she was to receive shares in a motion picture enterprise to be instituted in Canada. The Canadian National Pictures Syndicate, as it was called, was never formed.

Reed demanded a jury trial. He was defended by Attorney J. J. McShane. District Attorney Swart conducted the prosecution.

Repurchases Interest In Cleaning Business

NEW ELECTRIC RATES TO START APRIL 1st.

Residential electric consumers of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. are being advised through press announcements and notices mailed that the new domestic rates will apply with the first meter readings taken after April 1, where the consumer qualifying has returned the application blanks to the local office.

This new rate, according to Walter Kellogg, local manager of the company, will result in a considerable saving to consumers, and in order to expedite the application of the new rate the notices and advertisements are used as a medium of informing the public, and learning of those customers entitled to the new rate.

The new rate applies where residential consumers have lighting service and in addition use electric appliances totaling 1000 watts or more. The use of such appliances as percolators, irons, toasters, waffle irons, heaters, or similar equipment will qualify the residential consumer to receive this rate. As for example: A householder residing in a dwelling of 6 rooms or less who has been using an average of 50 kilowatt hours has been paying $3.30 a month. Under the new combination rate he will pay $2.60 a month, a saving of $8.40 a year, making the reduction greater than the amount paid for 2 1-2 months of service under the lighting rate. The saving in all territory will be in similar proportion.

Consumers should mail their applications immediately, or call at the local office where arrangements will be made for the application of the lower rate.

ADVICE TO NEWLY WEDS GIVEN BY STATE LEADER

"How To Be Happy Though Married Interestingly Told

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, March 29 — "How to be happy though married," an old subject, is treated in a new way by Mrs. W. W. Green of Biggs, state president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Green, who happens to be a wife and mother as well as a clubwoman, epitomizes her cure for marital troubles, at least a good many of them, in two words. To Mrs. Newlywed, she says: "Think Straight." And the same advice goes for the ladies who have celerated a good many wedding anniversaries.

The modern husband, thinks Mrs. Green, wants a modern wife —a wife who not only thinks, but a wife who thinks straight. Men have learned that wives can be intelligent and still attractive, a good cook and an intelligent voter. Intelligence, she says, will bring a breath of new life into the old institution of marriage. Be sure you cultivate it!

Women, incidentally, have already started to do their own thinking, not to mention some of hubby's thinking, according to the leader of California clubwomen.

As Exhibit A, she submits that wives today are marking their ... ballots exactly the reverse ... obtained and that some men think still exists.

Know the issues of every state campaign, urges Mrs. Green. Know the merits and demerits of each initiative and referendum issue on your ballot. And know the record of each candidate that solicits your vote.

The clubwomen, she says, already have made a big step in this direction. During state campaigns the local clubs, in many cases hold mass meetings to acquaint their members and the public generally with the issues. The women hear the best speakers on both sides of an issue, secure all the information possible and then form their conclusions. At least, some of them do, and that, according to the state president, is what every woman should do.

And here's another important point:

"Free yourself from false inhibitions," she declares. "Refuse to be bound by tradition, or traditional inhibitions that have become legal prohibitions. For instance, be frank with your children. Explain the mysteries of life, truthfully, but without overemphasis, as soon as they are able to understand—as soon as they get curious.

She adds: "It is far better to tell your children the truth beautifully, too young, perhaps, than it is to let them get half-truths sordidly, too late."

And if you can't be happy though married, the state federation club president believes sane divorce laws should be provided to meet the problem.

"Who knows better than the couple involved," she asks, "Whether they can live together happily and successfully? Yet today, if a couple disagree they must go into court and swear there is no collusion — to secure legal dissolution of marital ties.

"We women must insist that when man and wife are hopelessly mismated they shall have the right to go into divorce court together and secure a divorce on their own statement of the case. It is far better at least, than trumped-up charges, made to fit a law that states two people can not agree to disagree."

However, Mrs. Green believes that most couples can find marital happiness if they will think straight and be frank with each other.

"Now, I won't bite you," he said, "don't be afraid of me. Just be a good girl and do as I tell you, and—sweet papa!" He laughed lightly at his own humor, then he added briskly, "See here, Ron. You'll have to be married at once. If anybody should come on board to look us over, you smuggled the girl aboard without my knowledge or consent. She is your sweetheart, see? And you did it. So they'll have nothing on the ship. Now if you get married at once it will clear me of any suspicion of complicity."

"Y-yes sir," stammered Ronald faintly, his eyes pleading with Gay.

"N-no," she gasped.

"Yes. You came for that, did you not?" There was severity beneath the captain's amorously playful tone. "You came for it—now you get it. Not all women are so lucky. We'll have Bates and Hodge come up to witness it. Only takes a minute, nothing to it, really. Otherwise, Gay," he explained kindly, "it is an irregularity and we have many reasons for not wishing to subject ourselves to an investigation. You, who know everything, know that."

Ronald's eyes begged her for assent, for acquiescence, promised protection. But Gay did not look at him.

"Captain," she pleaded desperately, "I—I did think so. I—I did want to. But now—suddenly—I am frightened; I am not sure. He seems different to me. My—my heart fails me."

"Ah!" The brown eyes were narrow black slits. The voice sank to a purr. "You know—what you know. Much. One shrinks from a lawfully wedded husband who happens to be—at odds with the law?"

"Oh, no, it is not that." She flashed a sudden warm look full upon him. "Not that. What is the law to a woman who—really loves? But do I? Or was I only thrilled for a time, stirred by mystery? Really, I do not feel the same to Ronald. I thought him so rugged, so big, so virile. Now beside you he seems—young—inefficient. Can he hold my love?"

The captain's head went back in a great soft laugh. His eyes upon Ronald Ingram were straight and unfathomable. "Oh, that is fair, is it not, Ron? She must be sure of herself. But you cannot stay here while you decide. Not the thing, you know. Come with me. The captain is the official guardian of his guests. I will take care of you—until you are sure."

Ronald Ingram flung himself against the door.

"No," he shouted. And then more faintly, "Never."

The captain's pleased eyes did not wander from Gay's vivid face, where fear and daring struggled for control. He did not so much as vouchsafe a glance to the officer who defied him. But the silken voice purred.

"Oh, yes, Ronald. Oh, yes. Come Gay."

Ronald Ingram slid slowly away from the door, his eyes upon his boots, and stood motionless while the captain, with Gay's hand in his, led her back to the room from which he had brought her.

"You're not only a very pretty girl, you're a very wise one," the captain said, as he helped her, solicitously attentive, from the big slicker, and put her coat, gloves and leather hat upon a hook on the wall, beside his own coat. "I like that," he smiled, giving it a little pat. "Looks nice and domestic. Sit here."

He put Gay into a big chair, and glanced appraisingly the length of the slim young figure, in its knickers and boots and flannel shirt. Gay self-consciously straightened her tie and smoothed her sleek dark hair. Now that the protection of the high collar and the low-set cap was gone, weariness, exhaustion, showed in her face, and her eyes were fringed with black.

He touched the bell, and stood in the door to answer it. "Some port," he said, "two glasses. You are tired," he said to Gay. "Are you hungry?"

"No. But I feel—very tired."

The boy passed in the tray at the door, and the captain quickly filled a small glass for her.

"Take this. And then you shall rest. But first, let me tell you this. No, drink it. It will quiet your nerves. It has been a shocking night." His kindness was disarming. Gay drank it slowly, felt the grateful warmth in her throat, at her heart. She smiled at him.

"Now you are going to sleep, but these things you must bear in your mind. You can see that you are tied to the boat as long as you live, can't you? Now, is there any reason why you should limit yourself by marrying a young subordinate? People are only married for the eyes of the world. Well, the eyes of the world aren't going to see much of you. We'll go through a sort of form—to get the papers right—and I'll sign you on. But you would be very foolish to tie yourself to—an underling—unless you are very sure you are very much in love, would you not?"

"I—suppose so."

"I'll say so. Of course, all this is only laying up trouble for myself. Ronald, who has been my friend, will be my enemy, but I can take care of Ronald. Our doctor is a rank idiot when there's a skirt about, and there'll be trouble with him, and trouble with the crew, and trouble at the ports. But then, I've had trouble before." He smiled at her. "You are a very pretty girl—and a very brave one. I think it's the nerve of you that really gets me. Worth a bit of trouble, I fancy."

A short rap at his door caused him to pull himself up, impatiently.

"Not now, not now. I'm busy," he said sharply, although he barely raised his voice above its wonted softness.

"Sir, beg pardon—it is very important."

The captain, with a bare sign indicating Gay to move back into the shadow of the room and remain quiet, went to the door. A seaman passed him a folded bit of paper on a tray. The captain read it, nodded his head reflectively, glanced back at Gay.

"Send the chief engineer to me," he directed the man.

And then he came to Gay. The companionable frankness of his voice was gone, instead it dropped to its most silky fineness, a fineness she already learned meant danger.

"Now tell me, who knew that you came aboard this boat?" His eyes hypnotized her.

"Nobody," she said quickly. "I give you my word. Nobody knew it."

"Who would discover your absence, and search for you?"

"Nobody. I am an orphan, an artist, I live alone. The people on the island will think I have gone to New York for a visit. Nobody will seek me. I am a free soul. Ask Ronald Ingram. He knows."

The engineer touched the door, opened it and came in. He did not glance at Gay in the corner. The captain handed him the bit of paper.

"Shall we show them our heels?"

The engineer considered. "How are the papers? Everything tight?"

"Tight as a drum. Except this woman—who smuggled herself aboard. But we can fix that up. The papers are perfect."

"Then I say we lay to, and give 'em the gab. What to run for? Then they know it's guilt. Face 'em, and flaunt it, I say."

The captain smiled at him, nodded assent. "You're right, of course. All right, then. I'll be right down."

The engineer went out.

The captain came to Gay and took her hand. His voice was soft, his touch caressive.

"Now, Gay, this is your chance. A boat is drawing up to us to look over our papers. You can go back on it if you wish. Would you like to?"

Wild hope throbbed in Gay's heart, beat such a tumult of glorious relief she felt he must have heard its music. But she remembered what Ronald Ingram had said, she was warned by the silken softness of the captain's voice. Stilling as best she could the hope that swelled in her heart at the thought of rescue she said faintly:

"Oh, no. Not yet. Can't I just stay on—with the boat? Can't I wait till I am sure?"

"Are you sure you want to?" His voice was a velvet breath. "This may be your last chance to go back. Are you sure you wish to stay on?"

"Yes, please. I am not afraid now. You will take care of me. I took a chance and came. I'd rather take another chance and stay. If you'll let me."

"Good for you!" His voice was warm and hearty. "I see we're going to hit it off first rate. I'll fix it up with Ronald. Stick to the original story, Gay. You smuggled aboard—under my own bunk—I always tell the truth when convenient—and I didn't see you until I had finished my paper work ready to turn in. I was just going to marry you to Ronald when they signaled us to lay to. Now you've got balance, and you've got nerve. You'll get through it. Right?"

Gay nodded briefly.

"Stay right here. I won't have you up at all unless I have to." He pulled a book from the rack on the shelf and threw it on the table. "Marriage service," he said. "Just ready to read the lines over you. That'll clinch it. Don't be frightened, Gay. They may be only rum runners. They've nothing on us. Just sit tight, and"—he kissed her hand—"I like you. Poor Ronny!"

Then he went out unhurriedly, smiling back at her.

Gay turned off the light in the room, got her coat and hat, and crouched by the door which she held ajar, listening. When the moment came, she intended to run out boldly and demand a rescue.

The captain stopped to speak to Ronald, to explain Gay's new status, and the two men went on deck together. Already a small boat manned with twenty men had put out from the coast patrol and was drawing swiftly up to the Roger Williams.

"Don't look so good," said the captain slowly, scanning the horizon, for lying about them lay six boats of the little coast guard fleet, completely hemming them in. "It's something more than rum," he said. "I wish we could get rid of that d—d girl."

CHAPTER XIV

With the captain and his chief officer in the bow of the boat putting out for the Roger Williams, stood Randolph Wallace, and he was laughing.

"I know that boat," the captain said, "she's been held up time and time again, but she always manages to get clear. Slick as the dickens, that gang. Money back of them. That's how."

"She's a beauty," Rand said, admiring eyes on the Roger Williams.

The coldness of the morning air, the grayness of the pale dawning, the tang of salt on his lips and in his nostrils, exhilarated and thrilled him.

"What'll they do with her, I wonder—the boat? I know there's a big reward out for this gang, but I think I'd rather have the boat. Do you suppose they would give her to me, instead of the reward? I feel just like settling down to a profession this morning. The last of the Captains Wallace. I think I'll go to sea. Gosh, how Gay would laugh."

The captain laughed, too, companionably. "They'll put her up at auction," he said, "and if you really want her—and if your charges against the gang hold water—they'll fix it up so you can bid her in. They couldn't give her to you outright—at least, I don't think so—too much red tape. But they could let you in on the bidding, and see that you had the money."

Rand's eyes, already shining with pride of ownership, roamed the Roger Williams, showing strong and stanch in the gray light, coasting the waves.

"I wonder I never thought of it before," he mused thoughtfully. "Yeh—Captain Wallace, last of the line. Pleased to meet you." He grinned joyously to himself, thinking of Gay.

"Any red tape to keep me from going aboard first? I want to make sure of a good looking chap, with sad eyes like a cow."

The captain laughed and motioned him up, so that the first feet aboard the Roger Williams were not those of active United States service, but the idle wandering ones of Randolph Wallace. Naval officers, however, were close behind him, followed by twenty service men.

Captain Garman stepped up to them quietly, all at ease. "You say you're after an escaped convict, but you come well heeled for a single stowaway."

"You have found no stowaways aboard, then?" asked the officer courteously.

"Well, a sort of one. A woman—running after one of my officers. We discovered her under my own bunk. If you can imagine such gall. I was just going to marry them when we got your message. Only this woman."

"Will you bring your passengers up and let us look them over?"

"We are only a freighter, as you know. But we carry up to twenty passengers on the side. Sublimated steerage passengers they are, cheap. Their papers are all right. I went over them myself."

"We'll look them over, if you don't mind."

Captain Garman gave a quiet order in an unruffled voice, and a man detached himself from the group and ran down to put it into execution.

"We're taking you back with us, captain," the officer went on slowly. "We have the goods on you. If you want to go peaceably, all right. Or if you want a scrap, we have the guns on you."

"What charges, sir?"

"Oh, a nice variety. Running Chinese, for one thing. Getting crooks out of the country on our side, and bringing them in on the other. Little matter of murder, too, if I am not mistaken."

Captain Garman's eye turned slowly out to sea, swept the horizon. His men were willing to fight, and the ship was built for speed as well as for endurance. But what chance, with six of the steel gray service dogs lurking watchfully at bay, hemming them in. Rather match wits with the lawyers in the courts.

"You'll find everything O. K., I fancy," he said imperturbably, "but of course if you insist I will return with you."

The passengers were hurried up from below, huddled back against the railing, and with them Gay, once more in her dark slicker and leather cap, who had slipped among them as they passed the captain's door. Gay's heart was glad in the knowledge that she was saved. But when, in the rear of that group on deck, she saw Rand, debonair, triumphant, smiling, her first feeling of heart-bursting joy that he was safe gave way to one of humiliation and shame. Rand came in triumph, with the United States navy at his back, to find her here, knickered and booted, like a thief among thieves, captured, disgraced and bandied lightly from man to man.

"Go over the lot of them," came the crisp order. "Look for papers, especially, and weapons. Lieutenant, take the second detail, and search the ship."

Gay cowered farther into the corner. Search her! She watched the approach of a brisk young officer with horrified staring eyes. She bit her lips until she tasted blood; she would not move, she would let him handle her, let him search. At the sudden slap of his hand upon her hip she shrank back silently. Feeling the bulk of the pistol in her pocket, he thrust his hand roughly inside her coat.

"Oh, no!" Her faint gasp was irrepressible, instinctive. But soft as it was, it carried across the deck.

"See here!"

With a bound, Rand leaped from his posture of careless grace against the rail, and hurled the astonished group from side to side before him.

He caught Gay's arm, and drew her about, amazed, incredulous.

"That's the stowaway," the captain explained silkily. "Found her under my own bunk. I was just going to marry her to my second officer."

"Gay," stammered Rand. "Gay, is it you? But it can't be you! But it is you!"

Gay cowered before him. "Oh, Rand," she sobbed, "I thought they had captured you and I came to be with you, and they hadn't, and you weren't, and—"

"Rand," she pleaded tearfully. "Please! He can marry us, the captain, he can marry anybody. Rand—just to please me."

"Gay, do you mean—"

"Oh, Rand!"

"Well, there's no reason why he can't, is there?" Rand demanded quickly of the officer who commanded the capture.

"Not if you make it snappy," said the officer, laughing in huge enjoyment of this unexpected turn. "Before I take over the boat."

"Oh, we'll be snappy, that's the thing we do best. Gay, think a minute! Pull yourself together. Are—you—sure?"

"Oh, Rand!"

"Well, how about it, captain? You've no objections, have you?"

"Marry her! Marry you!" ejaculated the captain, dazed with the suddenness of this surprising new demand. "You! Good lord! Another one! Came on board after Ingram, switched over to me, and now got the hooks in you. All right, all right. I'll marry anybody. She's the smoothest worker I ever saw. Jim, bring up the book from my desk, it's open to the page. We'll have Ronny for one of the witnesses. Good lord—another one—and been aboard less than two hours."

In the pale gray light of Christmas morning, standing out bravely, a dishevelled absurd little figure, with a band of desperate criminals to left of her, a troop of American guardsmen to right, with Captain Garman, wanted for a hundred crimes in half a hundred ports, reading the service over her in a soft and silken voice, Gay Delane, in boots and rubber slicker, with tear-blinded eyes and salt-stained face, renounced her freedom forever.

JUNIOR COATS FOR SPRING; SIMPLE TAILORED UNDERWEAR

Smart Coat for Young Girl.

PLAIDS and checks, for which there is such unbounded enthusiasm, are right in their element in the junior realm. To be sure, there is nothing startling in the thought of plaids until one sees them in their array of new colorings. According to foreseeing colorists this is to be a "blue" season and many of the smartest plaids and checks confirm this prophecy.

Miss Junior in choosing a spring coat for school wear will be proving that she knows a thing or two about "style" if she requests to be shown a plaid carried out in shades of blue. If it be belted in navy suede after the manner of the model in the picture, it will have achieved the utmost degree of chic.

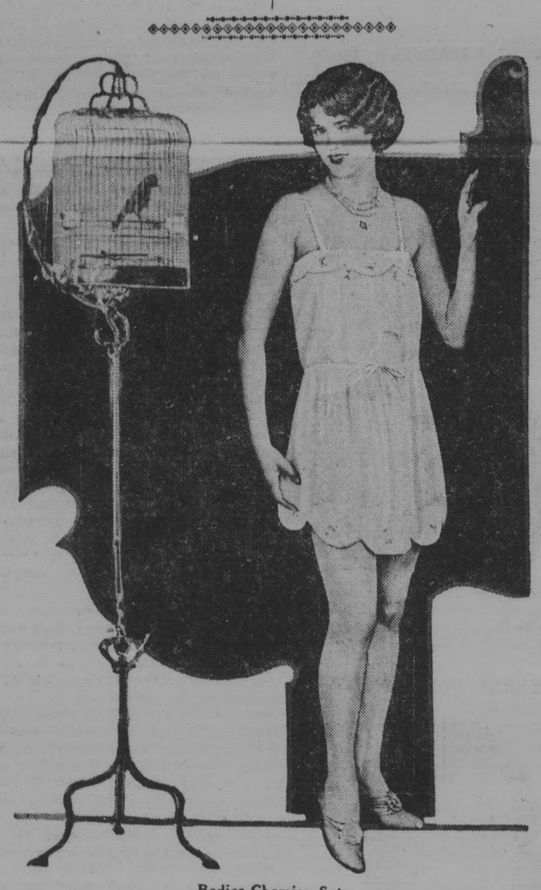
Among featured materials for youthful coats, basket weaves are given special prominence. Light tan shades predominate in these loosely woven woolens.

Many coats, especially those of navy twill or kasha cloth, are accompanied with print silk or crepe dresses which match their linings. A scarf of the silk run through slots in the cloth collar of the coat adds a touch of chic to these ensembles.

The junior miss, aspiring to fashions as worn by her elders, has enthusiastically adopted the cape theme. Very smart and extremely practical types for the schoolgirl feature neat straight line coats which are tailored of either tweed or navy twill, the same topped with capes which are detachable.

The self-fabric scarf is also an outstanding feature in junior coat styling. These scarf collars are variously enhanced with tucks or self-toned embroidery or a bit of dainty fur across the scarf ends. Sometimes both cape and scarf collar form partnership. Stylists are making it a point also to use very bright effective linings which greatly accent the charm of both cape and scarf.

Young girls are also taking keen delight in coats of cloth which introduce the silk kerchief trimming. That is, a triangle print scarf of silk is attached to the coat by being drawn through slots cut in the cloth. Another whim of fashion is that of dangling a gay silk print kerchief from the pocket, caught by only one corner. Which all goes to show how conspicuously the kerchief squares and triangles are entering into the spring picture.



Bodice-Chemise Set.

TO BE SURE, no normal beauty-loving woman is going to withstand the lure of lace and ribbons and all sorts of delightfully frivolous fol de rols, when it comes to assembling a collection of dainty underthings. Indeed, no up-to-date lingerie wardrobe would be complete without its generous quota of filmy, fragile lace-laden garments. However, when it comes to the genuinely practical, there is no type which insures the service and ever-prettiness as does the garment which is tailored with utmost simplicity.

As an exponent of the practical type the bodice-chemise set in the picture captures one's fancy, because while it is tailored its artfully scalloped hemline gives it a daintily trimmed aspect. For the making of this garment the woman who does her own sewing could successfully use either washable crepe satin or crepe de chine. While it would be in perfect accord with fashion's idea to choose a delicate tint, say flesh, blue, maize or nile green for this garment, the latest message from headquarters tells of a revived interest in white.

If one is inclined toward the thoroughly practical, there is one material above all others which answers this call, namely, pongee. No argument is necessary to convince the woman who has once put pongee to the test, of its winsome qualities as a medium for utilitarian underwear. Not only does it launder both easily and perfectly, but besides being always spick-and-span looking, it is exquisitely cool and refreshing to wear.

Specialty shops are showing most intriguing pajama ensembles, costume slips and gowns of pongee. These include garments for children as well as grown-ups.

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Is It Your Nerves?

Bakersfield, Calif.—"I had a nervous breakdown, unable to leave my bed. I was under the care of a doctor, but was not getting along as well as I thought I should, so I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it is the tonic and nervine that restored me to health. Its soothing effect upon my nerves was wonderful while taking the first bottle, but I continued its use until I had taken five bottles and was then completely restored to health. I have never had a physical or a nervous breakdown since, which proves the thoroughness of the 'Prescription' in reaching the source of the trouble and then overcoming it."—Mrs. Gertrude Higley, 1224 Truxton Ave. All dealers.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

During the third quarter of 1927 exports of merchandise from California were valued at $68,202,018, compared with $$72,985,978 during the corresponding period of 1926, a decrease of $4,783,960, according to figures made public by the Department of Commerce. California was the fourth largest among the States during the quarter, improving its position from the second quarter when it ranked fifth. California was topped only by New York, Texas and Michigan.

Five new lilacs, the last plants with which Luther Burbank worked prior to his death, are in bloom on the experimental farm near Sebastopol and are declared to be among the most beautiful species of lilacs known. They are described as a very large double white "hose-in-hose"—double white and a double purple of the same variety. Prior to his death Luther Burbank told correspondent that he felt confident he would produce from his experiments the finest of all lilacs.

Declaring that the state traffic officers' force is self-supporting and actually costs the taxpayers nothing, George F. Moynahan, acting chief inspector of the division of motor vehicles, announced last week that the officers received $640,412.86 in salaries last year but were responsible for collection of $468,748.42 in fines and delinquent fees. Moynahan said the traffic officers stopped 234,738 persons on the highways during 1927 and arrested 67,013.

Approximately 300 United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps and California National Guard planes, flying in one dense mass formation over San Diego, will be the spectacle which will be unfolded to Southern California about August 30. The flight, which will be the climax of two months of intensive aerial battle maneuvers by the aircraft squadrons of the battle fleet, will eclipse any aeronautical event of its kind in flying history.

Governor C. C. Young and members of his family narrowly escaped what might have been a serious automobile accident last week on the Freeport road south of Sacramento. The car containing the governor and his party swerved from the highway and was brought to a safe halt with difficulty when a rod connecting with the steering wheel, in the hands of Miss Barbara Young, the governor's daughter, suddenly snapped and threw the machine out of control.

California highway contracts aggregating $5,336,818 will be awarded during the next four months. In making this announcement B. B. Meek, State director of public works, asserted that the March program of the division of highways calls for the award of contracts and requests for bids for work totaling $4,250,000. Projects included in the March program are located in nineteen counties and its volume and wide distribution are expected by Meek to provide an important factor in relieving unemployment.

The State Board of Education has approved the plans of State Architect George B. McDougall, Forum building, Sacramento, for the Chico State Teachers' College to replace structures destroyed by fire. The construction program will be undertaken as follows: (1) immediate construction of a $200,000 main classroom building: (2) recommendation to the 1929 legislature for appropriations to erect a second unit of the development program, an assembly building of undetermined size and cost; (3) recommendation to the legislatures of 1931, 1933, 1935 and 1937 for further appropriations to erect units including library and science buildings, classroom buildings and training quarters. This will distribute the cost over the 10-year period.

With the arrival at San Quentin prison of William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marion Parker, eight murderers are awaiting execution in California's two penitentiaries, it was announced at the governor's office last week. At Folsom prison Willard D. Shannon, convicted in Amador county of killing Harold Lage, Stockton automobile salesman, is under sentence to go to the scaffold May 4. April 27, the execution date fixed for Hickman at San Quentin, is also the day on which Edgar Lapierre, Alameda county slayer, is scheduled to mount the gallows at the same prison. The five other murderers under death sentences at San Quentin are: John Joseph Malone, Los Angeles county, to be hanged May 4; Mark Dowell, San Francisco, on appeal; Lonnie Johnson, Merced county, to be hanged May 11; Joseph Troche, Eldorado county, on appeal; Clarence Kelly, San Francisco, to be hanged May 11.

The state forestery department is preparing for a season of numerous forest fires. Fearing that light snowfall in the mountains this winter presages a summer season of excessively low humidity with a consequent aggravated fire situation, State Forester M. B. Pratt Barron, state inspector at Souls, said a few days ago that cleaning up of the forests and brush areas has been in progress all winter. Inspectors have burned oved large areas of brush lands, burned slashings, cleared brush from roads and highways and have carried on general inspection work.

Conservation of California's wild game, fish and outdoor recreational attractions was urged last week as an activity as necessary as the conservation of the wealth of the community, of which only the interest and not the capital is used. The meeting was held at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, in the form of a luncheon—the first of a series to be held in this cause. Seventy-five thousand sportsmen of the State, representing the membership of 112 organizations, affiliated with the Associated Sportsmen of California, are interested in the work now being undertaken

The Porter bill in Congress which provides for establishment of two Federal farms for narcotic addicts last week won the unqualified support of former Senator Frank H. Benson, chief of the state division of narcotic law enforcement and one of those perfecting plans for a narcotic hospitalization unit in California.

California's total estimated daily average crude oil production for the week ended March 17 fell off 4,700 barrels, according to the American Petroleum Institute. The report, issued a few days ago, shows the total estimated daily average crude oil production for the week of the report to have been 609,500 barrels as against 614,200 barrels for the week ended March 10.

Sacramento's "Days of '49" celebration, which drew visitors to California from every section of the country during 1922, is to be repeated next year. The Sacramento Whiskerino Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Retail Merchants' Association and other civic organizations decided this week on repetition of the colorful pageant, announcing that the next twelve months will be devoted to advertising the proposed gold discovery festival all over the world. July of next year has been tentatively suggested as the time for the celebration, the plan then begin to repeat the fete in 1939 and again in 1949, the hundredth anniversary of California's picturesque gold rush.

The importance of preserving to the mountain counties for future development a reasonable percentage of the waters originating within their borders was, a few days ago, urged before the state legislative water committee by Assemblyman H. E. Dillinger of Placerville and others representing Sierra Nevada districts. Dillinger emphasized the program set forth in a bill he introduced at the last legislative session providing that 15 per cent of all water should be withheld in the mountain counties. "All we are asking is enough water to take care of our absolute needs in the future," he said.

Confusion that followed passage of the County Budget act was further cut down a few days ago when the Attorney General's office ruled that the act did not repeal the county 40-cent highway tax or the special road tax fund, amounting to two mills per dollar of assessed valuation. In response to a query from the State Department of Finance, Deputy H. H. Linney declared that these taxes merely limited the taxing powers of counties, and that the budget act was to be read in the light of these limitations. Amendment of the disputed section in the act raised the county's limit for bonded indebtedness from 50 cents to 75 cents per $100, without repealing either road tax, the opinion held.

During the third quarter of 1927 exports of merchandise from California were valued at $6,202,018, compared with $72,985,978 during the corresponding period of 1926, a decrease of $4,783,960, figures made public a few days ago by the Department of Commerce show. Exports of gasoline were valued at $11,084,904 and ranked first in value among the commodities sent from the state to foreign markets during the three-month period. Exports of gas and fuel oil were valued at $6,939,704, followed in order by barley, $5,186,664; oranges, $3,685,819; illuminating oil (kerosene), $3,475,740; raisins, $2,024,043; dried apricots, $1,961,240; boards, planks, scantlings, $1,466,435; canned peaches, $1,309,602; crude petroleum, $1,278,81".

A vein of potential rich ore-bearing gold has been discovered eight miles from Mariposa at the Buena Vista mine but the anticipated gold rush failed to materialize up to a few days ago. And residents of this community, who have heard the tales of gold-strikes in recent years, are desperately hoping that the days of '49 will not be reenacted again—even in minature. They look upon the possible strike as something which may stimulate gold-mining here—but they have their doubts. Optimistic reports that the ore assayed $460 a ton were discounted by residents as "exaggerated." However, they declare that the vein discovered offers "possibilities." It is now owned by Miss Belle McCord Roberts of Long Beach who bought the property about a year ago.

State Engineer Edward Hyatt last week supplemented his comments of a few days before on the St. Francis dam disaster with a statement saying he did not intend to lay responsibility for failure of the dam at the door of the city of Los Angeles. Hyatt said that in his opinion foundational weaknesses in the abutment of the dam were to blame for the collapse and that responsibility for the foundations rested with Los Angeles city engineering authorities, as builders of the dam he said then that the right abutment was anchored in red agglomerate rock which he found very soft. "Any statement made now as to the cause of the failure of the structure is at best but a theory," he said, however.

The national forests in California comprise about one-fifth of the land area of the state and total 18,593,807 acres. Their resources are estimated in excess of $300,000,000.

As punishment for their attempt to escape from Folsom prison, Floyd Hall, life term bandit, and Robert York, serving a term for burglary, have been placed in solitary confinement, Warden Court Smith of Folsom prison announced last week. Their stay will be indefinite. Smith stated that an investigation has convinced him that no other prisoners were involved in the attempted break.

To Reveal Life on Moon

A giant telescope which is to be erected on Naval hill, near Bloemfontein, South Africa, was referred to by Professor Rossiter of Michigan university at a university luncheon in Bloemfontein. It will be possible, through this giant telescope, to discern an object an inch high nineteen miles away, he said, and it will be possible to see in the moon objects the size of a cathedral.

Veteran Farmer

What is believed to be the record for consecutive farming in Texas is the achievement of C. C. Jackson of Powell, Texas, Confederate veteran, eighty-six years of age, who has not missed making a crop since the close of the Civil war in 1865. Last year he did not grow cotton, but had a corn crop which made a good yield.—Indianapolis News.

Herbert Hoover Club Gets Under Way Here

Monday afternoon an enthusiastic Hoover for President Club was organized in this city, under favorable auspices. The gathering was called to order by Dr. E. O'Keefe, who briefly outlined the objects of the club, saying that it was the providence of the club to get the voter out at the primaries on May 1st., so that the Hoover delegates could go to the Kansas City convention next June backed by the big vote of the state. This would have a good effect on the convention and would aid the candidacy of the popular secretary of commerce.

The permanent officers of the organization are D. E. O'Keefe, president; Mrs. E. M. Kneese, secretary; Sam Winklebleck, vice-president; and Edward Harrison, treasurer.

The members pledged themselves to work diligently to secure as many registrations before tomorrow night as possible and to make every effort to get the voters to the polls on May 1st.

After considerable discussion, it was agreed to hold a large mass meeting April 19, which will probably be addressed by John L. McNab, one of the delegates to the national convention.

Membership rolls will be at the office of Charles Lambert, Times-Gazette office, the First National Bank, George H. Rice Abstract Company's office and the Tribune office. Also pledge cards which when signed will be forwarded to the Hoover headquarters in the Crocker building, San Francisco.

Mrs. Kneese, the popular county clerk, has been extremely diligent in her efforts to secure a large registration and has succeeded in getting thousands on the books. She announced that the total registration to date of 21,747, of these 15,352 are republicans. She believes that by May 1st the republican registration will reach the 20,000 mark.

Those signing the membership roll at the meeting were D. E. O'Keefe, L. A. Heiner, Franklin Swart, Sam Winklebleck, Charles G. Lambert, Edward T. Harrison, Elizabeth M. Kneese, Dr. Robert Frazier, E. H. Werder, J. J. McGrath, Dr. J. N. Blood, M. A. Harris, Roy W. Cloud and George Underhill. It is thought before long the club will have a membership of 250.

Work Started on Broadway Building

Work was started this week on a one-story re-enforced concrete building on Broadway for A. J. Fromm, on property formerly occupied by the Germania hall. The building is being erected by Daly Bros., local contractors. It will have a frontage of 25 feet and will contain two stores, one to be leased by Gordon Seeley of the United Cigar Co. The contract price of the building is reported to be $11,755.

THREE GIRLS DISAPPEAR; SOUGHT BY COUNTY POLICE

Police of the county have been notified to be on the lookout for three girls who have disappeared during the week. Two of the girls left homes in San Mateo, the third was a ward of San Mateo county at the juvenile home on Washington street, this city.

Monday morning Edith Mentz, 16, and Lucille Batson, 15, of San Mateo left their San Mateo homes, presumably together, and have not been heard of since. A theory that the girls had been abducted has been given up, and it is now supposed that they planned to run away together and will probably be found trying to secure employment as movie stars.

The other girl was Rose Continolo, 14, who has been a ward of the county for several weeks, escaped from the detention home here.

Miss Alice Bettin, formerly of this city, and now connected with the school department of San Francisco, was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hopkins on Fulton street last week.

Redwood City Cubs, formerly under the name of Lucky Strike Athletic Club, will play on the local diamond Sunday at 2:30 with the Tarbon Jrs. of San Francisco. The locals already have a game under their belt when they beat the fast Dorian Boys Club by a score of 6 to 3.

Little is known of the strength of the visiting club, but the fans will be assured of a good game. Coach Bud Lambert of the Redwool City club has not announced the line-up of his team. There will be no admission charge at this game.
